

70th Anniversary Block Party September 23, 5pm

Chili Cookoff and Pie Contest!

The Manor is turning 70 and we can't think of a better way to celebrate than throwing a neighborhood block party!

On September 23rd, we will mark the 70th anniversary of the establishment of Jefferson Manor with a community block party! We will honor the residents who have lived here for decades and welcome the many newcomers who will carry the character of the Manor onward. Our annual Chili Cookoff and Pie Contest will take place and we will serve catered food, host a Biergarten featuring our local Manor brewers, and provide activities for the kids. Monticello Road will be closed for festivities between Fairhaven Ave. and Edgehill Dr.

Sponsorships are available for this event, contact: ads@jeffersonmanor.org.

Event Schedule:

September 20, 7:00pm, Mount Eagle Elementary - JMCA Community Meeting
Topic: Open House

Saturday, October 28 1:00-3:00pm - Fall Festival at Jefferson Manor Park.
Kids/Adult costume contest and potluck.

From the President

by Alexis Glenn, JMCA President

Another summer is coming to an end and what a great time it is to be a part of the Manor. On the same day in August we marked two special community events, National Night Out and the long-awaited opening of Bob and Edith's Diner at Huntington Station. Both of these occasions highlight the best of Jefferson Manor: our community. The family-run Bob and Edith's Diner has been a staple in the Northern Virginia community since 1969. It is a place for those from all walks to gather for a meal or a treat in a place that feels like home. It is an understatement to say that I am elated to have the diner as part of our neighborhood and I wish them many more early mornings and late nights with patrons lined up for eggs and milkshakes!

In the Manor we take pride in our neighborhood and National Night Out is a chance to connect with our local police officers and to recommit to keeping Jefferson Manor a thriving community. We are fortunate to have resources in the County Police Department, like Crime Prevention Officer Robert Urps, who lived in Jefferson Manor for 25 years. Officer Urps spoke at our July community meeting about the importance of participating Neighborhood Watch. Did you know there are nearly 600 homes in Jefferson Manor? If only two people live in each household, that's at least 1,200 sets of eyes and ears on our community each day and night. There are many ways, formally or casually, to contribute to a safe and friendly neighborhood. I encourage you to get in touch with the JMCA or Officer Urps for more information on the many ways to help.

Fall will bring many more opportunities to celebrate our wonderful community. On Saturday, September 23rd, we will mark the 70th anniversary of the establishment of Jefferson Manor with a community block party. We will honor the residents who have lived here for decades and welcome the many newcomers who will carry the character of the Manor onward. I hope to see all of the neighborhood out for this special occasion!

Thank you for being a part of Jefferson Manor and don't hesitate to reach out.: President@JeffersonManor.org

Minutes from the General JMCA Meeting - July 27, 2017

submitted by Jim Martin, Vice President

Thirty or so Manorites turned out to hear updates on JMCA's plans for the future, a presentation on Neighborhood Watch/national Night Out, and a discussion of Huntington Club Condominium's plans for renovation/expansion. Fairfax County Police Crime Prevention Officer Robert Urps led off by talking about the Neighborhood Watch Program, a national program that relies on the eyes and ears of neighborhood volunteers to help police detect and deter crimes. He stressed that this is not a "patrol"-type program. It relies on a passive approach – just keep your eyes open when you are out walking the dog, for example, and call the non-emergency police number if you see something that doesn't look right. Officer Urps noted that he often provides information on crime and policing events via NextDoor, and you can also subscribe to Fairfax County e-mail alerts about security issues/event. He also urged people to come out for National Night Out, held annually across the nation on the first Tuesday in August, which helps neighbors and the police that protect them get to know each other. Derek Cole, a Manorite, mentioned his interest in revitalizing the Neighborhood Watch in Jefferson Manor, and is looking for other volunteers.

Officials and developers of the Huntington Club Condominium (on the right side of N. Kings Hwy as you head towards the beltway, just past the metro) then talked about their plans to redevelop. Built in 1977, the condo consists of 10 two-story buildings containing 364 apartment units. The condo owners have been talking about redeveloping since 2009, encouraged by Fairfax County's plans for high-density, transit-oriented development around metro stations. Now that they have achieved agreement of 80% of the homeowners, Huntington Club is moving ahead to the development stage. The plan is to redevelop from the current configuration to one that would include a high-rise rental/retail building close to Huntington Avenue, a commercial building (possibly with a hotel) right next to the Metro on N. Kings Hwy, townhouses, and 4-5 story condo units on North Kings Hwy. The plot would be developed in stages with the Huntington Avenue high-rise first and the N. Kings Hwy parts last. The developers plan to take advantage of the slope of the plot downhill from N. Kings Highway, reducing the visible footprint, with the taller buildings at the bottom of the hill. Following another condo owners' vote to approve the plan, the developers estimate it will take 18 months to get zoning approval, then another 24-30 months from approval to shovel-ready, with the first phase taking two-three years, and the whole process ten years. In response to questions from the audience, the speakers said that when completed there will be a total of 1600 living units, of which 200-300 would be classified as "affordable" and "workforce" housing. Parking for all units would be on-site. There would be limited entry-exit on North King's Hwy (probably only right in/right out). Residents who do not want to move out while the work is being done can stay in/move into buildings yet to be renovated, and those who do not want to buy into the new condominium will be offered buy-outs at for more than the units' current market value, according to the speakers.

In other business, President Alexis Glenn urged attendees to come to National Night out on August 1, announced plans for a JMCA block party on September 23, and noted the need for a volunteer to replace newsletter editor Kyla Lupo, who is moving out of town.

Letter(s) to the Editor

In the July/August issue of the JMCA Neighborhood News the editors raised an important question: Manor or 'Hood? And you were invited to respond with your thoughts to newsletter@JeffersonManor.org

Dawn Pilkington was kind enough to share her thoughts on the subject:

"I grew up in Jefferson Manor, and bought a home here on Fairhaven Ave. Those of us who have lived here since the 70s have always called our neighborhood "The Manor." The people who lived on the other side of Mount Eagle (down School St) also referred to us as Manor kids, (or when playfully teasingly each other, they sometimes called us the unappealing "Manor Rats" as a joke. But still, we were identified as Manor (something).

I'm with you - the Manor sounds much better than the hood.

I love this neighborhood! It's changed a lot over the years, as one would expect. I love the mix of people - different ethnicities and backgrounds, office professionals and trades people (many of whom own their own businesses), young families out and about with their kids and dogs and bikes... I adore Jefferson Manor park and proximity to metro, Voila bakery, Bob & Edith's (YAY!), and such conveniences as a post office, dry cleaner, shops, and so on. I also love our big ol' trees, and the fact that the houses have so many different kinds of additions."

We welcome your thoughts on this, or any subject relevant to our community. Newsletter@JeffersonManor.org if you want to be published, President@JeffersonManor.org if you have an issue that you'd like addressed.

On The Mat

by Natalie Arbuckle

Do you sit for long periods of time?

Is your lower back stiff?

Are your hips tight?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, you are in great company! Two of the most common complaints I hear in any adult yoga class is “my back is stiff” and “my hips are tight”. A very simple way to gently stretch the lower back and the hips is to walk backwards. We do not typically walk backwards so when we do, we allow the body to operate in a slightly different way which can offer some gentle relief to the back and hips.

Find a comfortable space with room behind you. Slowly begin walking backwards. Notice how you feel. Bring your thoughts to your lower back and hips and as you walk visualize the tension dissipating from these two places in the body.

Practicing with your little one? Children love playing with their balance and often test different ways of walking. Pretend you are trains and say “chug a chug a choo choo” as you walk forward. Stop. Put your hands out as if holding a steering wheel and pretend you are driving a truck. Say “beep beep” as you walk backwards. Repeat 4 times.

Neighborhood Watch Reboot

Love Jefferson Manor and want to do your part to keep it safe? Several members of the community have discussed restoring some basic neighborhood watch activities/meetings and would like to invite all JM neighbors that would like to participate! The primary goal of the program would be increasing communication and awareness with the belief that monitoring and maintaining our neighborhood will help prevent crime. The neighborhood watch would operate independently from the JMCA, yet provide updates when needed. The group so far has discussed fun, informal meetings with basic community involvement to provide crime prevention tips and increase the flow of communication. We are also looking to boost neighborhood participation with community projects and events! We aren't looking for law enforcement officers, just people that want to show how much they love where they live and build a stronger community. Everyone can play a part when it comes to crime prevention, it can be as easy as making a phone call, picking up litter, or even reporting a street light outage.

If you would like to be included or learn more, please contact President@JeffersonManor.org

Dispatches from Fork Drive

by Elspeth Kursh

It is HOT. The last thing I want to do in the depths of summer is stand over a hot stove, or worse turn on the oven. We use our grill a lot in the summer, and here's a great change of flavors from the more commonly grilled fish or chicken.

The sauce is made on the stove, though over a low flame. The rest of the process takes place while the sauce simmers down, and the actual cooking happens outside, saving you from heating up your house. There's some extra sauce if you use 2 full pounds of tomatoes. It's bonkers on grilled cheese with bacon. In case you have some extra of any of those ingredients lying around.

When you put the pizza on the grill, you can have to trust you'll be able to shove it on from a cookie sheet. You can bake the pizza on a stone on the grill, or use a round pizza pan, but it's better if you put it directly on the grate. Those without a grill can cook the pizza in a 425 degree oven for about 15 minutes until crisp and bubbling.

A note on the crust: after ten years together, my husband and I still disagree about proper pizza crust. I love a deep dish, and he loves a thin crust. This isn't the thick crust of my preference- Del Ray Pizza's is my platonic ideal! I don't even bother trying that one at home because theirs is so perfect. If we are making pizza at home (and we do a lot or else you would have to roll me out of the booth at DRP), this is our favorite crust.

You may notice that there's no basil in the sauce. Fresh basil tastes a little acrid to me if it's cooked in this manner. You can add fresh basil leaves to the pizza before or after grilling; they're a beautiful addition to a user-friendly dinner.

Grilled Pizza Recipe

Sauce:

2 pounds tomatoes, in one inch chunks
1 tablespoon salt
10 ounces (1 ¼ cup) red wine

Cheese:

10 ½ (1 package) goat cheese, softened
1/3 cup diced shallots
2 tablespoons parsley

Dough:

1 cup warm water, 105 -115 degrees
1 teaspoon yeast
Pinch of sugar
3 cups all-purpose flour (not self-rising)
2 teaspoons salt
3 slices of cooked bacon, fat reserved

To make dough:

Sprinkle yeast and sugar over water and allow to rest for 10-15 minutes until bubbly. Gently mix in the flour, ½ cup at a time, adding salt after 1 cup of the flour has been added. Continue to add flour until the dough forms a shaggy mass that clears the side of bowl. Turn out and knead, adding flour as necessary to keep the dough from sticking, until the dough is smooth and springy to the touch. Grease a large bowl with the reserved bacon fat, add dough, then turn to ensure the dough is evenly coated in the bacon grease. Cover the bowl with plastic wrap and set aside.

To make sauce:

Combine tomatoes, salt, and wine in a non-reactive saucepan (this will take the seasoning right off your cast iron!) and heat over moderately low heat, stirring occasionally. Heat until the liquid has reduced to 1/3 of original volume and the tomatoes are soft- about an hour. If you have an immersion blender, a quick zap at the sauce will break up any remaining skin. Otherwise, pass the sauce through a strainer, reserving the liquids. Discard the skins.

To make cheese:

Combine goat cheese, shallots, and parsley in a bowl with a spatula. Mix until thoroughly incorporated. For added panache, scoop cheese by the tablespoon and roll in your hands to create a little ball.

To make pizza:

Split dough in half. Return one half to the greased bowl and cover with plastic wrap. Using a rolling pin, encourage the dough into a round shape, about 12 inches across. The dough will be about a half inch thick.

Top dough with 1 cup of tomato sauce, and half the cheese. Break the bacon into 1 inch chunks and sprinkle. For added panache, scoop cheese by the tablespoon and roll in your hands to create a little ball.

Make second pizza as first.

Turn on your grill and set it to medium high. Allow to preheat for about 10 minutes. Turn the flame to moderately low, and place pizza directly on the grill. Cook until nicely browned, about 5-8 minutes. Monitor closely to prevent burning.

Serve immediately.

Volunteers Needed for Rebuilding Together Projects in September

submitted by Don Ryan, Healthy Homes Consultant

We are hoping and expecting that Rebuilding Together home repair projects will be scheduled in September to help two Jefferson Manor homeowners, probably on a Saturday.

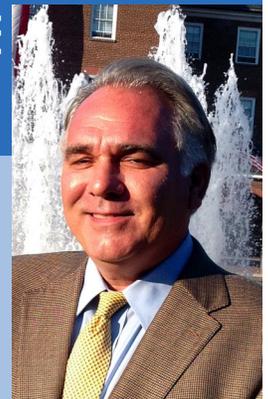

Rebuilding Together Arlington/Fairfax/Falls Church mobilizes volunteers to make critical home repairs at no charge to low- and moderate-income homeowners.

Please let Natalie Arbuckle, (natalie.arbuckle@gmail.com) know if you are interested in volunteering. Stay tuned for confirmation of the dates and additional details. This is an opportunity for Jefferson Manor to come together to help out neighbors in need.

If you'd like information about how apply for free repairs, call Rebuilding Together Arlington/Fairfax/Falls Church at 703-528-1999 and mention that you live in Jefferson Manor.

Bob and Edith's Arrives in Jefferson Manor

and we couldn't be happier

The end of the line might sound negative but not for the Jefferson Manor community. Nestled at the corner of Fort Drive and North Kings Highway, Bob and Edith's restaurant is a line you will want to wait in. For metro goers and Alexandria residents, this is a perfect mom and pop diner chain open 24 hours. Whether you need a quick fix like eggs, bacon and toast before work or a late night bite like a burger with fries and a milkshake, Bob and Edith's expansive menu has something to offer for every taste bud. While I only skimmed the surface of the menu, there is an essence of pride that comes from each plate of food handcrafted to please each patron. You cannot beat the prices, large portions, and convenience. The aromas emerging from the kitchen at the ting of the bell reminded me of an episode of Seinfeld. The laughter and camaraderie amongst the community surely makes Bob and Edith's a success.

-Britney Schmidt

As I sat at a booth in the newly opened Bob and Edith's for the second time in one day, I gave myself a high five. All my diner related dreams were coming true. By way of background, I grew up in a small town with a famous diner. It's been featured in the New York Times; several expansions mean you might get a seat at the counter. If you go in at 5 am.

In college, I spent a lot of time at a diner famous for serving both Southeast Asian and American classics. A curry and a chocolate malt were (and remain!) one of my favorite meals. Then I lived near Lindy's Red Lion while I was in grad school, a place unchanged from when my father attended the same university in 1969.

I love a diner. I love the chrome. I love the fries. I love the grease. I love it all.

When Bob and Edith's announced they were opening a branch in Jefferson Manor, I sent my husband an email with the subject line "!!!!!!!" and a link to the story. I am thrilled to say "!!!!!!!" was an accurate choice.

Since Bob and Edith's opened on August 1, I have been there four times. (For the record, I am writing this on August 7.) Once was for a chocolate shake to-go (A plus, would get again), and the other three times were for meals. My first visit was the night they opened. Business was brisk. It took about forty minutes from ordering until the food arrived. My toddler was a bit of a grump, but the waiter brought a set of crayons, which helped. My husband got a chicken fried steak (verdict: thumbs up), my son ate a cheeseburger with fries, and I got French toast.

Diner French toast is my favorite. I love it to the point of irrationality. There is something about the griddle and the syrup and the butter. Under normal circumstances, I am pretty snobby about my bread and even more so about my butter, but not here. I love a big piece of Texas toast with all the trimmings, thank you. The French toast, and I am an authority here because I have now eaten it twice, was excellent.

Each time I've been, the restaurant has been working with small computer glitches. As they get settled, I think the service will match the food- comforting, homey, and great.

Every time I have walked past Bob and Edith's, there's been a line. I couldn't be more thrilled. Welcome to the neighborhood, friends. We're glad you're here.

-Dispatches from Fork Drive columnist Elspeth Kursh

When Vince and I heard that the grand opening of Bob & Edith's would be when we were away we seriously thought about rescheduling our trip. After *much* thought and discussion we realized how silly that would be.

Still, the first stop we made once we arrived home was to the diner. We almost stopped with all our luggage (on our way home from the airport), but restrained ourselves. We had French toast, eggs, bacon, toast, grits. All of it swimming in butter as the world intended it to be (except the eggs and bacon, but they did get butter on them). It was all delicious. A bit of a long wait, but that was OK. The service was kind and attentive. Aside from the credit card machine being down, everything was just perfect. We ate breakfast there again the next day. And also dinner. There's a new routine in our house: getting up at 5am, walking to the diner, eating breakfast with a big cup of coffee (and a refill to go) and heading home to start our day of working and packing. That has led to, on more than one occasion, eating there twice in one day. We have no regrets. (Other than choosing to move so soon after Bob and Edith's opened. But such is life; dream job or dream diner?)

-Kyla Lupo

When you first walk in, it is hard to remember that the new Bob and Edith location was an auto parts store for decades. Instead of the smell of old motor oil, you are greeted with the aroma of hash browns on the griddle. Gone are the stacks of spark plugs, replaced with glass cases filled with fruit pies. There is no doubt that you are in a classic diner.

Open 24/7 with all day breakfast, it means you can enjoy the enormous blueberry pancakes whenever the urge strikes. Old school classics from meatloaf to fried chicken are all available. In the mood for a late night dessert? The afore mentioned pies or milkshakes will hit the spot (though the milkshake could stand to be a little thicker). During the busy times, do not expect a quiet dining experience. The hard floor and wall surfaces bounce noise around with ease. Some could find this lively, but it can be a bit jarring in the mornings. Service is friendly and prompt, but a little patience while staffing and training ramps up will likely help your experience. Egg dishes should be ordered a little more on the done side if you are particular about such things.

Jefferson Manor finally has a spot to meet up with friends and neighbors, grab a bite, and have a laugh. Looking forward to seeing everyone there!
