About This and Future JMCA Newsletters

The COVID-19 pandemic has forced many changes in our community and daily lives. You received this issue by mail because the JMCA board felt it important to ensure each Jefferson Manor resident received a paper copy while we adhere to stay-at-home and social distancing orders. This newsletter contains links to local, state, federal, and international resources during the pandemic. We are providing the full webpage URLs so that you can easily find them.

Delivering paper copies to each household in Jefferson Manor has been an important part of our organization's mission. It ensures every household has access to community information and resources. It has the potential to reach residents who can't or don't want to use social media. It provides good value to our advertisers who know each home will receive a copy. However, in this unprecedented time, the JMCA is considering alternatives to delivering paper copies of the newsletter to each home if stay-at-home orders continue through this summer.

In the future, due to the cost of print and mail service, the board is considering publishing the newsletter online and asking you to opt-in to being mailed a paper copy if you can't or don't want to view the newsletter online. OR opt-in to be emailed a copy. The digital version of newsletters will continue to be available on the JMCA website at http://jeffersonmanor.org/newsletter-archive/

Sobre éste y futuros boletines de la JMCA

La pendemia de COVID-19 ha forzado muchos cambios en nuestra comunidad y nuestras vidas cotidianas. Recibiste este boletín por correo porque la JMCA considera que es importante asegurar que cada vecino de Jefferson Manor lo reciba de forma impresa mientras que nos apegamos a las órdenes de "Quédate en casa" y distanciamiento social. El boletín contiene enlaces a recursos que ofrecen autoridades a nivel local, estatal, federal e internacional durante la pandemia. Estamos compartiendo estos enlaces para que puedas encontrarlos más facilmente.

La entrega de estos boletines a cada casa en Jefferson Manor ha sido un elemento importante de la misión de la JMCA. Asegura que cada casa tiene acceso a información y recursos de la comunidad. También les da acceso a los vecinos que no utilizan redes sociales. Además ofrece buen valor a los que ponen sus anuncios en el boletín, ya que saben que cada casa recibe una copia. Sin embargo, durante este tiempo sin precedentes, la JMCA está explorando alternativas para poder entregar copias impresas del boletín a cada hogar si las órdenes de "Quédate en casa" continúan durante el verano.

En el future, y debido al costo del servicio de impresión y correo, la junta está considerando publicar el boletín en línea, y pedir a los que no pueden o no quieren leerlo en línea que opten for recibir una copia impresa. O optar por recibir una copia por correo electrónico. La versión digital de los boletines está disponible en el sitio web de JMCA en http://jeffersonmanor.org/newsletter-archive/

From the President

By Alexis Glenn, JMCA President

Dear Residents of Jefferson Manor,

So much has changed since my last letter to the neighborhood. For at least another month, and probably longer, our daily lives will be impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic. Normally, the JMCA would be in full swing, hosting meetings and events in the warming spring months. In this "new" normal, the JMCA is pivoting in order to continue providing you with important information, resources, and happy distractions from the very serious circumstances we are coping with.

While we had to postpone in-person gatherings like the Al & Sandy Snyder Home and Garden Tour, we hosted our first virtual community and board meetings in March and April, respectively. Community and board meetings will continue online throughout the Virginia Governor's stay-at-home orders. Our 2020-2021 slate of board candidates were elected via a form on our website. I am so pleased to welcome Katie Cox to the JMCA board and thankful to have our other board members returning to serve!

During this troubling time, I've drawn so much joy from this neighborhood. While we have always helped each other, more now than ever, residents have shown how they can really go above and beyond. One thing that all of this has proven is that our community is resilient and full of compassion for each other. I have never been prouder than I am now to be a part of Jefferson Manor.

We are here for you, please don't hesitate to reach out.

De la presidenta

By Alexis Glenn, Presidenta de la JMCA

Estimados vecinos de Jefferson Manor,

Mucho ha cambiado desde que escribí mi última carta a ustedes, los vecinos de la colonia. Durante el próximo mes, y probablemente más tiempo, nuestras vidas seguirán siendo impactadas por la pandemia de COVID-19. Bajo condiciones normales, la JMCA estaría en plena marcha, organizando eventos y reuniones durante estos meses primaverales. Debido a este nuevo concepto de "normal", la JMCA realizará unos cambios para poder seguir proveéndoles con información importante, recursos, y distraerles de las circunstancias muy serias que nos enfrentan.

Hemos pospuesto reuniones en persona como el Tour de Casa y Jardín. Por primera vez realizamos nuestra reunion comunitaria y la reunión de la junta directiva de forma virtual en marzo y abril. Estas reuniones se seguirán llevando a cabo en línea mientras que las órdenes del gobernador para quedarse en casa sigan vigentes. Nuestros candidatos para 2020-2021 fueron elejidos mediante el uso de un formulario en nuestro sitio web. ¡Me da mucho placer dar la bienvenida a Katie Cox a la junta directiva de la JMCA, y me alegro de que los otros miembros han decidido quedarse en la junta!

Durante estos días difíciles que vivimos, esta comunidad me ha dado mucha alegría. Siempre nos hemos ayudado los unos a los otros, pero ahora más que nunca hemos visto ejemplos de vecinos que han sobrepasado las expectativas para ayudar a su comunidad. Una cosa que ha quedado claro es que esta comunidad es fuerte y compasivo. Es un orgullo ser un miembro de Jefferson Manor.

Estamos aquí para apoyar a todos. No dudes en contactarnos por cualquier duda.

Current COVID-19 Overview

As of May 1, Virginia reports 16,901 individuals have tested positive for the virus and 581 deaths. Within Virginia, Fairfax County has the highest number of total cases. The number of new cases reported each day in the commonwealth remains high. Social distancing measures are having an impact; however, it's imperative that we do not relax our adherence to these measures to ensure that cases continue to decrease over time and the risk to vulnerable populations can be managed.

Virginia Governor Ralph Northam issued a stay-in-place order, which currently remains in effect until June 10, meaning that residents should stay in homes with only a few exceptions for essential activities, including:

- Getting groceries or medicines
- Caring for a sick family member or friend
- Getting medical care for yourself
- Going outside for exercise for yourself or pets (although not in groups larger than 10 people)
- Getting necessary social or government services
- Traveling to and from work

Do not go out unless you need to go out.

Lista de recursos e información sobre COVID-19

Panorama actual de COVID-19 en Virginia

A partir del 1 de mayo, Virginia ha reportado 16,901 casos confirmados del virus y 581 defunciones. El Condado de Fairfax tiene el número más alto de casos confirmados. La cantidad de casos confirmados que se reportan cada día sigue siendo alto. La medidas de distanciamiento social han tenido un impacto positivo, sin embargo, es sumamente importante que sigamos apegados a estas medidas para poder disminuir el número de casos y limitar el riesgo a los más vulnerables entre la población.

El gobernador de Virginia, Ralph Northam, ha decretado una orden de "Quédate en casa", que seguirá siendo vigente has el 10 de junio, lo cual significa que uno debe quedarse en casa con solo unas pocas excepciones, que incluyen:

- Hacer compras de comida o medicina
- Atender a un pariente o amigo enfermo
- Obtener atención médica para si mismo
- Salir afuera para hacer ejercicio para usted o su mascota (aunque no en grupos con más de 10 personas)
- Obtener servicios sociales o gubernamentales necesarios
- Viajar hacia y desde el trabajo

No salgues si no es necesario.

So long, Farewell, Auf Wiedersehen, Goodbye!

Saying goodbye is hard. I had to say goodbye to Chris and Marissa Soule -- the other half of my duplex and pretty much part of the family -- in December, when they moved to Chattanooga. Now I need to say goodbye to my extended family in Jefferson Manor, as my partner and I have found our forever home on Mason Neck. Let it be said it was not that I loved the Manor less, but that I loved being able to put my kayak in the Potomac across the street from my house more!

I met a bunch of fun people who over the years have worked hard for you on both things you can see – like block parties and kids events – and those you don't – like liaison with police, the Lee District Supervisor's office, and other local authorities to address the day-to-day issues that come up with crime, roads, parks, etc.

As many of you know, I have owned my house on Williamsburg Rd since 1991 -- lived in it for three years, then overseas for another ten, then back here since 2004. I have seen a lot of changes, almost all of them good. When I first moved in, this was something of a transitional neighborhood. I saw at least one drug bust from my front door and heard gunshots not infrequently. Derelict cars on blocks in front yards were still common. There were virtually no children: Mt Eagle School had a bad reputation, and couples bought houses here as starter homes but moved out when they began families or earned more. I am told there was a neighborhood association back then, but I never came across it. Most important of all, there wasn't much "sense" of neighborhood. I knew the resident next door and across the street -- and Helen, who babysat my then-infant, now 26-year-old son -- but that was about it.

Since my return to the Manor in 2004, I have found it has become a neighborhood in the best sense of the word, composed of people who celebrate together, know the names of and look after each other's dogs (and cats), and take care of each other when times are tough (like now) or when personal calamities strike -- like a tree falling on a roof or a house burning down. Dragged onto the JMCA board initially by Chris, and joining up again later with Alexis, I met a bunch of fun people who over the years have worked hard for you on both things you can see -- like block parties and kids events -- and those you don't -- like liaison with police, the Lee District Supervisor's office, and other local authorities to address the day-to-day issues that come up with crime, roads, parks, etc. And they're all volunteers. Remember to thank them -- and offer your volunteer time. It will be well spent.

I hope I will be able to see many of you -- and even celebrate with you -- before I leave the Manor in early June, but the Coronavirus may still have something to say about that, and we may be saying goodbye from six feet away. But the goodbyes will be no less heartfelt. But Mason Neck is only 30 minutes away, and a great place to explore if you like kayaking, fishing, hiking, or birdwatching. And I will be back to visit -- hey, my dues are paid through 2021! (Are yours? If not, please pay them -- again, it will be well spent!) So this really is "Auf Wiedersehen -- until we meet again -- rather than goodbye. And never fear, Kristi, the most fragrant roses in Jefferson Manor will stay behind to delight residents.

Oh, and that "almost all of them good " part?: when I first moved here, there was a High's Dairy store where the 7-11 now is -- hand-scooped ice cream cones! Sadly, it left even before I headed overseas

Here's looking at you, JM!

Jim Martin
5922 Williamsburg Rd.

The Jefferson Manor Zoo

On March 30, 2020, the residents of Jefferson Manor created a "zoo" to provide a social-distancing-safe diversion from the pandemic effecting the world. Deanna Snellings posted the idea to the JM facebook group. Neighbors volunteered to take part and she created a Google Map with all the addresses. Adults and kids walked around the neighborhood looking for "zoo exhibits" and enjoying our collective creativity. The next day, the zoo was featured on the local NBC morning news!
